

Web Hosting Your web site should reside on servers which have the right amount of throughput. This means they can handle the volume of traffic you will generate, especially during your intense promotional periods and not slow down at all. You also need the servers to be operational 24-by-7. Your site needs to be ready for the lunchtime surfer and those who check your site out when they return home from a late night out. eChazen has the right solution for you. eChazen will not put your website on a single server which could go down until some technician installs the right part and gets it working again. We put your site on what is called a "cluster of servers". If one of the servers goes down, a standby server is put in its place and your customers continue to view your site, without even knowing anything happened.

- Check out our Hosting Packages
- Register your domain name before someone bets you to it